

DFY VIRAL INSTAGRAM CONTENT CALENDAR

One week of a research-built Instagram calendar.

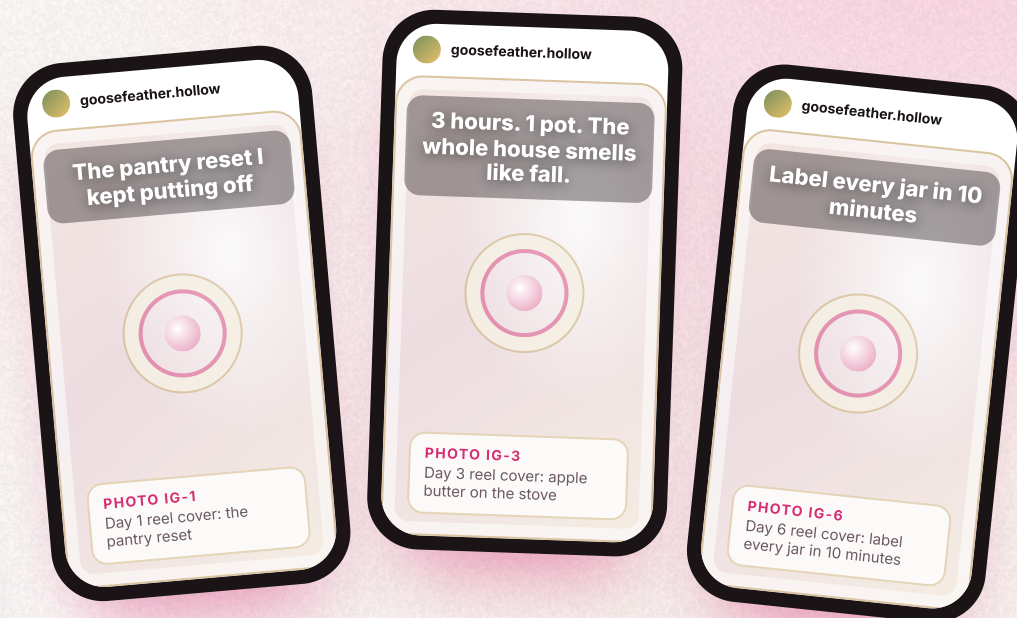

Seven finished posts: the format, the on-screen hook, the caption, the hashtags and a complete image prompt for every visual, plus a story set. Built from what's actually going viral for accounts like hers.

BUILT FOR

Goosefeather Hollow Homestead

Opal Abernathy runs a faceless homestead account: hands, kitchen, garden, porch. Sells a Pantry Reset Printable Pack and gives away a Fall Canning Checklist. Every call to action points to her link in bio, because Instagram carries no links.

STEP ONE IS RESEARCH, NOT WRITING

What the research found, and how this week uses it.

Before a word is written, the build studies 40+ outlier posts from 25+ similar accounts: posts that did far better than that account usually does. Three patterns came out on top for a faceless homestead account. This week uses all three.

01

Hands-only process reels

A chore shown start to finish from the hands, with one line of text in the first second. No face, no voiceover needed.

02

Save-worthy list carousels

A short list with one item per slide and a question on the last slide. In this research they drew the most saves and shares.

03

Quiet chores

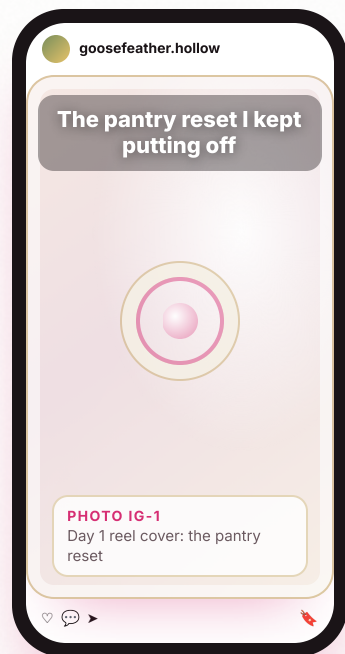

A slow, calm clip of one chore with a single line of text. Sound on, no talking.

DAY	FORMAT	HOOK	JOB
Day 1 · Monday	Reel · 12 to 15 seconds	The pantry reset I kept putting off	Offer: Pantry Reset Printable Pack
Day 2 · Tuesday	Carousel · 8 slides	7 things I stopped buying on the homestead	Goal: saves and shares
Day 3 · Wednesday	Reel · quiet chore, no voiceover	3 hours. 1 pot. The whole house smells like fall.	Free: Fall Canning Checklist
Day 4 · Thursday	Single image · long caption	The year the garden failed	Goal: comments
Day 5 · Friday	Carousel · 7 slides	Before you can a single jar, have these	Free: Fall Canning Checklist
Day 6 · Saturday	Reel · 10 seconds	Label every jar in 10 minutes	Offer: Pantry Reset Printable Pack
Day 7 · Sunday	Single image · short caption	Slow Sunday	Goal: comments

RULES THIS WEEK FOLLOWS

- No links anywhere. Every call to action says what's in the link in bio.
- No earnings or income figures.
- At most one selling post a day; the paid pack twice this week, never two days running.
- Every visual has its own complete prompt.

In a real build the research file lists every outlier post with its link and numbers. It is summarised here because this sample's client is fictional.

Day 1 • Monday

REEL • 12 TO 15 SECONDS

OFFER: PANTRY RESET PRINTABLE PACK

Pattern 1: hands-only process reel • On-screen text: "The pantry reset I kept putting off"

It took one Sunday afternoon and a stack of jars. Here's the order I did it in:

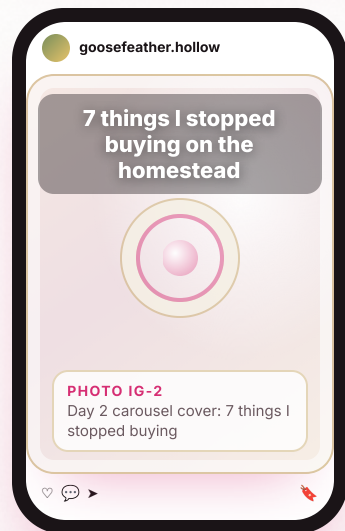

1. Everything out. Yes, everything.
2. Toss anything expired (it was a lot)
3. Group by how you cook, not by food type
4. Decant only what you use every week
5. Label the jars last

The labels I used are in my Pantry Reset Printable Pack. It's in my link in bio 📄

Save this for the weekend you finally do yours.

Image prompt IG-1 • Real-world photograph, vertical 9:16. Close, slightly high-angle shot of a woman's hands and forearms only, placing a clear glass jar of dried white beans onto an open wooden pantry shelf in a lived-in farmhouse kitchen. Rows of clear glass jars with plain blank kraft paper labels, a wicker basket of yellow onions, a folded linen tea towel. Rolled-up oatmeal cotton sweater sleeve, one thin gold ring. The top third of the frame is calm painted shelf wall with nothing important in it, because words will be placed there in the app. Soft window light from the left, late afternoon, gentle real shadows. Mirrorless camera, 35mm lens at f/2.8, natural bokeh on the back shelves. Photorealistic, true-to-life textures, natural imperfections: a few spilled beans, labels slightly uneven. No text, no lettering, no labels with words, no logos, no watermarks, no brand packaging.

Day 2 • Tuesday

CAROUSEL • 8 SLIDES

GOAL: SAVES AND SHARES

Pattern 2: save-worthy list carousel • On-screen text: "7 things I stopped buying on the homestead"

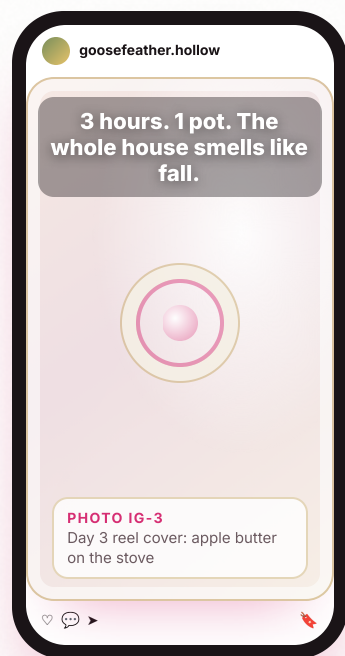

Not to be preachy. Just what actually stuck after three years out here.

- Slide 2: Paper towels (linen towels, washed weekly)
- Slide 3: Sandwich bread (one sourdough loaf, twice a week)
- Slide 4: Cling film (beeswax wraps)
- Slide 5: Boxed broth (scraps in the freezer, broth on Sunday)
- Slide 6: Salad dressing (jar, oil, vinegar, shake)
- Slide 7: Air freshener (a pot of simmering peels)
- Slide 8: Which one would you drop first?

Save it for your next grocery list.

Image prompt IG-2 • Real-world overhead photograph, 4:5 portrait. A worn butcher block counter in a farmhouse kitchen holding a stack of folded linen kitchen towels, a round sourdough loaf on a board, three beeswax food wraps in muted green, a jar of golden homemade broth and a small bundle of fresh rosemary. The left half of the frame is open butcher block with nothing on it, because the title will be set there. Soft overcast daylight from a window above, even and gentle. Shot straight down on a mirrorless camera, 50mm lens, f/5.6, everything in crisp focus. Photorealistic, lifelike wood grain, crumbs and a knife mark or two on the board. No text, no lettering, no labels with words, no logos, no watermarks, no brand packaging.

Day 3 • Wednesday

REEL • QUIET CHORE, NO VOICEOVER

FREE: FALL CANNING CHECKLIST

Pattern 3: quiet chore with one line of text • On-screen text: "3 hours. 1 pot. The whole house smells like fall."

Apple butter day 🍏

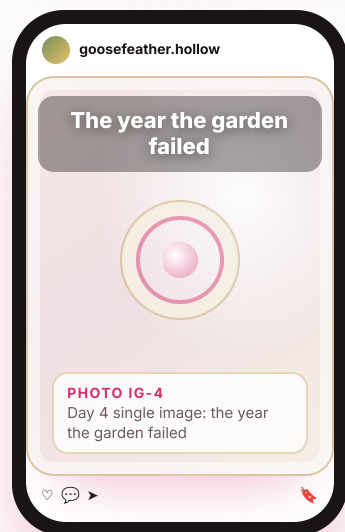

Peel, chop, cook low and slow, stir when you walk past. That's really it.

My full recipe card is inside the free Fall Canning Checklist, link in bio.

What's simmering in your kitchen this week?

#applebutter #fallcanning #homesteadkitchen #fallbaking #cozyseason

Image prompt IG-3 • Real-world photograph, vertical 9:16. A heavy enamel pot of dark apple butter simmering on an old white farmhouse range, steam rising, a woman's hand in a rolled cream flannel sleeve stirring with a long wooden spoon. A bowl of red apples and a cinnamon stick on the counter beside it. The top third is calm tiled backsplash, because words will be placed there in the app. Warm practical light from the range hood plus soft daylight from a side window. Mirrorless camera, 50mm lens at f/2, shallow depth of field, natural bokeh on the apples. Cinematic realism, real steam, a small drip on the side of the pot. No text, no lettering, no labels with words, no logos, no watermarks, no brand packaging.

Day 4 • Thursday

SINGLE IMAGE • LONG CAPTION

GOAL: COMMENTS

Pattern 2 variant: honest story caption • On-screen text: "The year the garden failed"

Two summers ago almost nothing came up.

The squash got bugs. The tomatoes split. I stood out here with a trowel and honestly thought about quitting.

What I changed the next spring:

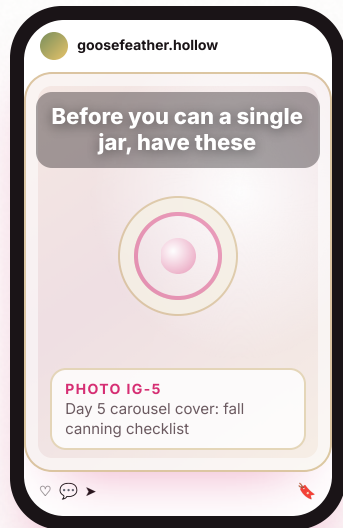

- Smaller beds I could actually keep up with
- Planting what we eat, not what looks pretty on seed packets
- One garden notebook, every day, even the boring days

This year the beds fed us all summer.

If your garden let you down this year, you're in good company. Tell me what grew and what didn't 🍌

#gardenfail #raisedbedgarden #homesteadgarden #growyourownfood #gardeninglife

Image prompt IG-4 • Real-world photograph, 4:5 portrait. A cedar raised garden bed at golden hour holding a few survivor squash plants among bare soil, a pair of muddy rubber garden boots and a steel trowel resting on the bed's edge, a weathered red barn soft in the background. Right-third subject, open sky and soft field on the left for the caption card. Low golden-hour sunlight, long real shadows. Mirrorless camera, 85mm lens at f/2.8, compressed background, natural bokeh. Photorealistic, true-to-life soil texture, chewed leaves, honest and a little imperfect. No text, no lettering, no labels with words, no logos, no watermarks, no brand packaging.

Day 5 • Friday

CAROUSEL • 7 SLIDES

FREE: FALL CANNING CHECKLIST

Pattern 2: save-worthy list carousel • On-screen text: "Before you can a single jar, have these"

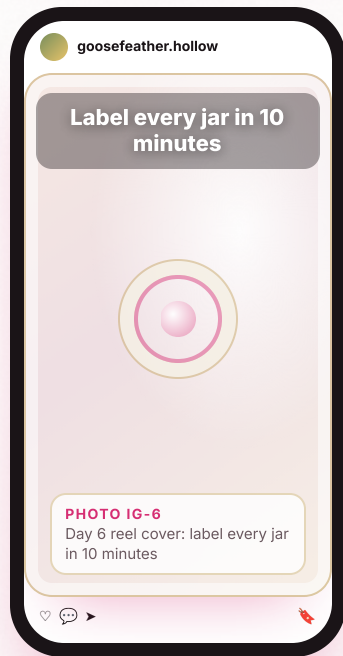

The checklist I wish someone had handed me before my first canning weekend:

- Slide 2: Jars and new lids (never reuse lids)
- Slide 3: A big pot with a rack
- Slide 4: Jar lifter and funnel
- Slide 5: Clean towels, lots of them
- Slide 6: A tested recipe, not a guess
- Slide 7: A clear counter and a free afternoon

The printable version is free, link in bio. Tape it inside a cupboard door 📌

Image prompt IG-5 • Real-world overhead photograph, 4:5 portrait. A blue and white gingham tablecloth holding empty clean mason jars, a stack of new lids, a wide-mouth canning funnel, a jar lifter, a folded towel and a bowl of pears. The top half has open tablecloth with nothing on it, because the title will be set there. Soft window light, morning, gentle shadows. Shot straight down, mirrorless camera, 35mm lens at f/5.6. Photorealistic, realistic glass reflections, a few water droplets on the jars. No text, no lettering, no labels with words, no logos, no watermarks, no brand packaging.

Day 6 • Saturday

REEL • 10 SECONDS

OFFER: PANTRY RESET PRINTABLE PACK

Pattern 1: hands-only process reel • On-screen text: "Label every jar in 10 minutes"

Monday I showed you the pantry. Today, the labels.

Print, cut, peel, stick. Ten minutes for the whole shelf.

They're in the Pantry Reset Printable Pack with the shelf plan and a restock list. Link in bio 📌

Image prompt IG-6 • Real-world photograph, vertical 9:16. A woman's hands only, peeling a blank cream sticker label off a sheet and pressing it onto a glass jar of rolled oats at a farmhouse kitchen table. Small scissors, a short stack of label sheets face down, a mug of coffee. Rolled-up soft grey sweatshirt sleeve. The top third is calm, a plain white wall, because words will be placed there in the app. Soft daylight from a window behind, bright and clean. Mirrorless camera, 50mm lens at f/2.8, natural bokeh. Photorealistic, true-to-life paper and glass texture, a slightly crooked label. No text, no lettering, no labels with words, no logos, no watermarks, no brand packaging.

Slow Sunday

Day 7 single image: slow Sunday on the porch

Day 7 · Sunday

SINGLE IMAGE · SHORT CAPTION

GOAL: COMMENTS

Rest day: community question · On-screen text: "Slow Sunday"

No chores list today. Cider, the porch and a very tired dog.

What does your slow Sunday look like? 🍂

#slowsunday #farmhouseporch #slowliving #countrylife #homesteadlife

Image prompt IG-7 · Real-world photograph, 4:5 portrait. A farmhouse porch in soft overcast light: a wooden rocking chair with a chunky cream knit blanket over the arm, a mug of hot apple cider steaming on a small side table, an old sheepdog asleep on the boards, the pasture and a split-rail fence beyond. Chair in the right third, open porch and sky on the left. Soft overcast daylight, even and quiet. Mirrorless camera, 35mm lens at f/4. Photorealistic, weathered wood, dog hair on the blanket, real and lived in. No text, no lettering, no labels with words, no logos, no watermarks, no brand packaging.
